The Holiday—Santa Claus's Work—A chance for Beautiful Presents.

The holidays have come to night the Christmas tree will be loaded and lighted in many a cheerful and happy home, throughout the civilized globe, and in stand non-conforming New England, as bright and merrily as elsewhere—almost—quite, for all our people have not yet got the hang of it, but they are coming into it, at least in its pleasant social phases. We like this much as one of the elements of making home pleasant and happy and enjoying it with halcyon and touching associations. And the observance of Christmas is now common by the decoration of the dwelling with evergreen, and the illumination of the Christmas tree, and the bestowal of presents, and, remembrances, and friendly greetings and wishes, have a tendency to awaken a new interest in home, and to bind the family together in new and strong ties of affectionate regards.

We last year told our young readers about Santa Claus, to whose agency is often ascribed the filling of the stockings of the little folks, and of depositing some pleasing thing in the branches of the Christmas tree, or in the Christmas box.

They are expecting his return to night with his usual budget of funny things. We hope all may be pleased with his visit. We think he has been in town and brought a great variety of beautiful, and rich and rare articles, although large lots of the articles have been left in Portland, but will get along here in season for New Year's day.

Just look into the beautiful store of Messrs. Fenn & Hale, on Main street, and examine the rich goods they have displayed there. There will be no difficulty in finding something to please, to gratify, and to interest. In another portion of our paper may be found the advertisements of those who have adapted specially to the Holiday season, and to those notices we must refer for particulars.

Mr. Duran in the Gothic Block, has laid out largely for splendid books, annals and standard, for the scholar and the private library, for the aged and the young. His collection is worthy the examination of all who wish either books or fancy stationery.

Mr. J. S. Tompkins at his Jewelry store opens with a great variety of rich goods, both of his own manufacture and of the best manufactures of others. His notice in another column tells the story very decidedly, and to that we refer.

Mr. Skerry, who the little folks think is a brother to Santa Claus, has arranged his great assortment of toys and fancy articles to suit the tastes of all. Just look at his picture in our paper and then call and see his store.

William Lewis in Smith's Block, has spread a table of very handsome and attractive fancy articles together with rich annals and other high finished books, besides a little multitude appropriate for gift books.

David Dugan in his new store on Exchange street, has laid in a great quantity of rich and attractive books suitable for the holidays and all days. He has an eye for the gratification of his friends, and can hardly fail to suit them now.

With the specific notices we only need say, that the husband and father, the lover and friend who wish to bestow handsome presents upon those they wish should be particularly happy during the Christmas and New Year's holidays, have only to make slight exertions to do so, as the variety beauty and richness of appropriate articles were never more numerous, attractive or desirable. We hope people may all be suited, and we think they may, and thus hoping and thinking, we wish to all both young and old a Merry Christmas.

LABORING CLASSES OF ENGLAND.

A new movement, having for its object the improvement of the laboring classes in England has just been started in London. A number of individuals of standing and ability are investigating personally the residences, food, clothing and manner of living of the lower classes in the large cities. Their reports are published in the Morning Chronicle, the proprietors of which are the originators of the scheme. The disclosures already given partake strongly of the horrible and disgusting. They have already produced more effect upon the public mind than a hundred false-sensu theories concerning the laws of population and the Mutual Relations of Capital and Labor—there is a new dawn upon the horizon of the laboring classes, and the investigations rarely extend beyond the precincts of their own comfortable dwellings. The "highways and hedges" are the best places for benevolent efforts of this character.

A returned Californian, says the New York Organ, who reached home in the Crescent City last week, walked into his house and was about to throw his arms around his wife, when she screamed and fled into the street, crying murder and raising the neighborhood. The poor fellow afterwards succeeded in getting her to recognize him, but the children will not own him yet.

Subscribers to the Courier can forward payments in letters by mail, or hand their money to their respective Postmasters, who will forward it to our office. Many of them are now indebted to us for several years. We hope such will stop this, and no longer delay sending us some money.

Richard Grant White was arrested in New York, Saturday evening, for smashing the statue of himself and James Gordon Bennett, which stood in the window of James W. Jacques, in Broadway. Mr. White didn't like the association, so he smashed the figures.

Mr. Benton refused to attend the Senate Loco Foco caucus on Monday, and the Senators refused to put him upon any of the Committee, all of which will but widen the breach existing between the factions. Old Bullion, seems impatient, it is said, to meet his opponents in the arena.

Never was there a period in the history of the Government, when the exertions of the Whig party in all its conservative and united force, were so earnestly looked up to by good citizens of all classes, for calm and patriotic action as now. May our friends fully deserve the trust thus reposed, whether the people prove grateful or otherwise.

The Republic translates from the Cronica a long article condemnatory of the course of Mr. Taylor in obtaining thecession of the Island of Tigra. That the Tribune thinks may be taken as an indication that the Administration does not entirely approve all that gentleman's doings.

The accounts from the North of France report recent falls of snow and other meteorological signs indicative of a very severe Winter. These accounts are generally confirmed by the English provincial papers.

The mortality in New York City for the week ending Dec 15th, was 253, of which 6 were of apoplexy, 32 of consumption, 23 of convulsions, 18 of dropsy, in the head, 23 of inflammation of the lungs, 9 of marasmus, &c.

A California letter published in the Edinburgh Gazette, states that Miss Abiah M., formerly of that place, was at San Francisco, making $25 per day, by washing.

The exports of domestic products for week ending Dec 16, amounted to $110,857 21, foreign $44,726 35. Same time in 1848, domestic $83,078 73, foreign $55,497 62.

Rev. John Sawyer of Garland in this county and formerly of this city was ninety-four years of age last October; he is hale and hearty, preaches every Sabbath, and is as active as many men at the age of sixty. He is the oldest congregationalist Minister in the State.

The anniversary of the Landing of the Pilgrims will be celebrated on this evening by public religious services, an address by Rev. Dr. Pond, and select singing by the Billings and Holden's society of the real antiquarian stamp.

The papers inform the public that the editor of the Kent News, published at Charliswold, Md, has had good fortune, a few days since, to read a lady's hymenial altar, who possesses $30,000.

The legislature of South Carolina has passed a law to punish, by whipping, those who sell liquor to slaves.

The British steamer Hecate, Sir Henry Bulwer, Minister to the United States on board, arrived at Bermuda on the 11th, and sailed for Washington on the 16th.

THE VERY LATEST FROM EUROPE.

The New York papers contain the following despatch, by telegraph from London to Liverpool, immediately before the sailing of the steamer on the 1st inst.:

London, Saturday, Dec. 1.—A committee of naval officers has been appointed by the Admiralty to consider the most advisable means for ascertaining the fate of Sir John Franklin. The committee will be composed of the following officers: Sir John Franklin, the French Government has ordered the expeditionary army for which it has been impossible to find barracks, and who are all lodged. The Government announces that it will do nothing to prevent the expedition to Berlin on a special mission. The Emperor mentions a report, that the President of the Republic will grant a general amnesty to all the political offenders, on the 15th of December.

Letters from Lyons to the 27th inst. state that the overflowing of the Rhine has caused much damage in that city. The houses, quays and adjoining streets are completely flooded, and the inhabitants obliged to move with their property.

The reports that the President had signified his intention to stand a second time for the Presidency are contradicted.

At Lyons, 24th.—The army of troops in the Crown Lands proceeds with rapidity, and the movement is almost finished.

PARIS.—Government has informed Denmark that correspondence must be entered into with the Government of Holstein, or the Prussian troops will be withdrawn and negotiations for peace on the part of Prussia broken off. Denmark to settle the matter here.

Alsen and Sonderburg are to be put on a footing of war. Quarters for 10,000 men have been bespoken. The Elbe was almost impassable at Hamburg, on the 27th November, from the accumulation of ice, and should the severe frost continue for a few days, the navigation may be considered closed.

The Newark Advertiser gives responses ble authority for the following statement as to the position of President Taylor. It is given in a letter from Washington. The writer says:

The authors of this movement have lately discovered that the President although a Southern man, is not to be trifled with upon a question like this. He has said that this Union shall be preserved, and that he has taken the oath to maintain the constitution and laws, what may he will defend the Union against the world in arms and South Carolina besides? They have also ascertained that the forthcoming Message will speak in language upon this point not to be misunderstood, and contains such high patriotic sentiments as will be responded by the hearts of millions of freemen, North and South.

Following and fearing this, they are now coming to delay the organization of the House in the vain hope, that if the Message is delayed they may by threats of dissolution obtain some concessions under which they will escape from the predicament in which their unlawful schemes have placed them. This is the true cause of all the bustling in the House.

THE WISCONSIN PROVISION.—The correspondent of the Journal of Commerce says:

It is said that, at the late consultation of the Democratic Senators, it has been ascertained that the Wisconsin Provision will pass that body.

It is said that all the Democratic Senators from the free States will vote for it except Gen. Cass, who will vote against his instructions, and resign his seat, trusting to the chances of being re-elected. It is doubtful whether the Legislature of Michigan will adhere to the instruction that they would rescind their winter session.

There is a chance, I think, that the whole subject of the Provision will be evaded by the Senate.

How guarded should we be when we speak to the unhappy, whose sorrow and dejection are apt to dispose the heart to interpret into an unjust and bitter sense, every expression that does not breathe the greatest gentleness and affection.

FATHER OF MRS. MILLER.—Affecting Narrative.

A painfully interesting account of the recent movements and disappearing mysterious disappearance of Mrs. Miller, at Niagara Falls, comes to us in the Detroit Daily Advertiser of the 6th inst.

Mrs. Miller, it will be remembered, was the daughter of Hon. John Norvell, late U. S. S. of Detroit, and the wife of Major Miller, of the Army, now in Florida, that she reached the Eagle Hotel at Niagara, from Winchester, Va. (where she had sojourned with her husband and children until he was ordered to Florida) on the 29th ult., with her two little boys four and six years old—that she disappeared during the night—and that sundry letters, her gold watch, a purse with some $4 in coin, all the ornamental parts of her hair, two trunks, and a very few clothes, her wedding ring, &c., were found on her chamber table.

She left there also several letters, and one addressed to her father, commending her little children to his care. The circumstances of this affecting case, were immediately telegraphed to Mr. Norvell. It was at first supposed that she had thrown herself into the rapids, but subsequently, there was some reason to believe that this was merely a ruse, and it was given out that she had absconded with a gentleman from Philadelphia. Her relatives at Detroit, however, do not believe this, neither are they willing to believe that she is not living.

The Detroit Advertiser, after giving such particulars in reference to the melancholy case, proceeds as follows:

To the relation, embracing all the material facts now known here on the subject, it is proper to add, that at Winchester, the infant daughter of Mrs. Miller was distressingly ill for several months. Of course she felt called on to devote all her days and nights to the bed of the child. A young mother, with an ardent attachment to her children, her unremitted attentions, her sleepless vigils, her loss of rest, made heavy draughts upon her constitution and mind. In her letters to her mother, she evoked an admirable spirit of fortitude but occasionally intimated that the absence of all rest, and her distress of heart, had affected health in various ways. On the decease of the child, in reply to a letter of condolence, she addressed to her father the following answer, which was dated the 19th of November, but postmarked Nov. 13th, and received by him on the night of the 16th of this month:

My Dear Father— I have recently received your affectionate letter, and am very grateful for my late loss. It was something to my feelings, and to be valued as coming from one whom I could believe and feel to be sincere. I am anxious to be with you again, as I cannot be with my husband, and he is obliged to me to stay here. He is well, and willing to hear his final wishes on the subject, before leaving here. My health is far from being good, and spirits are still worse. The boys seem very healthy, and are never sick. I should be glad to hear from you again, and to see you at your leisure will allow you to spare me the time. Best love to mother and all the children.

Your affectionate daughter,
I. G. MILLER.

Hon. J. Norvell.

Mrs. Miller is 26 years of age. She was the daughter of John Norvell, the late Senator and youngest of whom died in early infancy. To her father, mother, brothers and sisters, she was exceedingly attached. To her first and third child she affixed the name of her father, and to her second the name of her mother. She was married when she was sixteen and a half years old.

From infancy, she possessed, when retired, and in the domestic circle of the family, a touching and melancholy expression of countenance. Her father, a devoted and successful educator, was the number one in this city. She was a short time at the academic institution of Madame Grelaud, in Philadelphia, and for some months at that of Miss English, at Georgetown in the District of Columbia.

Well educated, intelligent, accomplished, she was a universal favorite among all her acquaintances, of whom she had an unusual number. Retiring in disposition, domestic in her habits, generally preferring retirement to society, she nevertheless always made herself agreeable by the vivacity of her spirits, her lady-like manners, and her good sense, in the social circles which she entered.

Of a somewhat delicate disposition, a refined taste, a romantic turn of mind, she invariably, but unaffectedly, recoiled with intuitive loathing, from all freedom and coarseness of manners and conversation.

She possessed of a sufficiently large share of personal beauty to satisfy rational passion, and was graced with all the charms of womanly mildness and dignity of deportment, she blended with these a piety which seemed natural to her from the first dawn of her creation, and which was fostered by the revelation and example of God to whom she owed her existence, and to whose tender cares and solicitude she was indebted for all the virtues, which that example, fortified by her own good sense, could confer.

That such a woman, of a purely of soul devoted to duty, and of a religious and Christian character, should have been so early a victim to a mysterious and self-destructive disease, is incredible. That she should have placed herself in the power of a stranger, left her poor little orphan children several hundred miles from any of their relations, helpless, throws upon the mind a gloom which is almost unbearable; that she should have done so, is unknown; that she could have done so, is almost impossible; that she should have done so, is almost impossible.

If she left the Falls with the person described, her hopes and affections, humiliating the feelings, of her family and connections, is still more beyond the possibility of belief.

Such an association.

Colored Settlement in Michigan. There is in Cass County, Michigan, a large settlement of colored people, mostly from the Southern States. They have a fine location, well fitted farms, neat and comfortable cottages and buildings, and live an industrious and happy life.

The Goheen (Ind) Democrat, says:

Yesterday morning about fifty colored persons passed through our village on their way to Cass County, Michigan. They had just been manumitted by a wealthy planter in Virginia. A hapless set of fellows I believe were never seen. Their faces were as white as flint, to the North, their free and happy home. A number of their number were fugitives who joined the train after they left Virginia, but, who, too long to see the promised land. Michigan affords many advantages to the colored race which cannot have in any other State. South or North, and we are happy to be informed that a hundred and more have availed themselves of a home in Michigan, there are but few who make unworthy citizens.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22. The House have elected a Speaker, HOWELL COBB, of Ga., by a vote of 102. Winthrop had 100. The House decided that a plurality should elect.

BY THE LAST MAIL.

The Senate met in executive session, and a message was received from the President. Adjourned till Monday.

Editorial Note: With the President yesterday. He goes South to-day. Mr. Barrow of Virginia and Mr. Babbitt of California have been admitted as attorneys and solicitors of the Supreme Court.

Dec. 22. The Democrats held the only caucus last night, at which the Conference Committee reported in favor of electing Speaker by a plurality vote. The report was adopted by 12 majority. The Democrats determined to renominate Cobb.

The Whigs hold their caucus to-night. The Herald correspondent at Washington, very bad authority, has obtained information sent from Mr. Lawrence, Minister to England, announcing that negotiations had been entered into in relation to the Nicaragua question, which preclude any difficulty growing out of the Nicaragua business. Lord Palmerston has taken a most conciliatory position in reference to the whole matter.

At the Senate yesterday two confidential messages were received from the President. One related to the Nicaragua question, and the other to cover the first treaty in the Nicaragua negotiation by Senator.

The second treaty, annexing the island of Tigra, is withheld, and will be repudiated by Mr. Taylor. Mr. Taylor explains that the treaty is withheld, and will be repudiated by Mr. Taylor.

The third treaty will not be confirmed until a similar explanation is made. Appointment—Mr. Edward J. Morris, of Philadelphia, has been appointed charge d'affaires to Mexico, vice Mr. Power resigned.

WITTED LAWYER FROM WASHINGTON OF SOUTHERN COOPERATION.—The following singular dispatch reached us late last evening, without signature.

WASHINGTON, Thursday, Dec. 20. There has been a meeting of Southern Congressmen at Gadsby's, and seven have agreed to publish a Southern paper. This movement has caused great excitement here.
